STUDENT - CENTRIC LEARNING

A host of instruction methods are deployed to make teaching-learning holistic and effective

H.R. College of Commerce and Economics believes in the philosophy articulated by Phil Collins: "In learning you will teach, and in teaching you will learn." Guided by this principle, the institution has progressively shifted its instructional paradigm from a teacher-centered model to a learner-centered approach. The college recognises that student-centred methodologies are significantly more effective than traditional teacher-oriented approaches. Such a learner-centric framework encourages critical thinking, analytical ability, and creative problem-solving skills among students.

A student-centric model promotes student empowerment, encouraging learners to assume greater responsibility for their own educational journey. Active learning is fostered through a variety of interactive pedagogical methods, including project work, classroom assignments, group discussions, pair-based activities, role plays, brainstorming sessions, and case-study analysis. These approaches not only enhance academic engagement but also help students develop life skills, knowledge management capabilities, and the ability to pursue lifelong learning.

To further strengthen this learner-oriented environment, the institution has implemented several strategic initiatives:

- Introduction of specialised certificate courses such as Advanced Excel, Tally, Social Media Marketing, Sound and Video Editing, Power BI, and a Certificate Course on GST. In addition, Summer Schools and Corporate Seminars are organised to expose students to a diverse range of dynamic and industry-relevant subjects that reflect emerging global trends.
- Organisation of Distinguished Lecture Series, where professionals and experts from leading organisations interact with students and provide insights into contemporary industry practices. Notable examples include seminars on Big Data, Business Intelligence and Analytics, a Panel Discussion on Goods and Services Tax, and a Seminar on Budget Analysis.
- Establishing collaborations with industry partners, non-governmental organisations, and other stakeholders, thereby bridging the gap between academia and society and bringing real-world perspectives into the classroom.
- Development of state-of-the-art infrastructure and adoption of modern teaching-learning methodologies to ensure that the process of knowledge acquisition remains effective, engaging, and relevant to contemporary professional requirements.
- Encouragement of student internships, enabling learners to gain valuable hands-on experience and practical exposure to professional environments.
- Provision of training in foreign languages, including German, Spanish, South Korean, and Japanese, alongside regional languages, thereby enhancing students' global competence and employability.
- Continuous faculty development initiatives aimed at strengthening student-centred teaching methodologies. Several specialised training programmes have been organised for faculty members, including workshops on Research Methodology and Data Analysis through SPSS, BFSI Industry: Recent Trends and Future Outlook, Research Ethics and Academic Writing, and Citation Metrics, among others.
- Through these initiatives, the college continues to cultivate a dynamic, participative, and intellectually stimulating academic environment, where students are encouraged not only to acquire knowledge but also to apply it effectively in real-world contexts.

activities. The IQAC has a multi-level Quality Management initiative for the college. At one level, it sensitizes the faculty, the non-teaching and other staff of the college. On the other hand, it elevates and seeks to create a desirable and encouraging environment for students.

The IQAC comprises of faculty members who have earned respect for integrity and excellence in teaching and research, while at the same time are aware of the ground realities.
